PICK LEE AS YOUR HERO. ADVICE TO STUDENTS

Secretary of Navy Daniels Lauds Southern Leader in Address at Washington and Lee.

EXEMPLAR TO ALL YOUNG MEN

Orator of Day at Finals, Secretary of Literature-Eighty-Nine Students Get Diplomas.

Lexington, Va., June 17.-Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, was given the honorary degree doctor of literature by Washington and Lee University at its annual commencement exercises to-day. Mr. Daniels was orator of the day, and in his address to grant the grant of th versity at its annual commencement exercises to-day. Mr. Daniels was orator of the day, and in his address urged the grdauates to emulate the example of manhood set by General Robert E. Lee, who was for many years president of the university. Eightynine students received diplomas, degrees in course being conferred as follows:

Matter of arts, three, bachelor of arts, thirty-six; bachelor of science, eleven; bachelor of laws, thirty-nine.
"If I had one wish more than another for the South, it would be that a double portion of the spirit of General Robert E. Lee should fall upon them and that those who lead should receive his mentioned. receive his mantle and worthily wear

So declared Secretary Daniels in his So declared Secretary Dameis in his address. The secretary's earnest message to the students was "get a hero," and he urged them to choose Lee as their examplar, pointing out that their future would be marked by the sort of heroes they chose.

All Hero Worshipers.

"We are all hero worshipers—or we should be—and I give you the example of the perfect product of what worship of the noblest hero can produce in urging you to choose Lee as your examplar, as Lee chose Washington," said he. "I cannot tell you the alchemy or the transmigration by which one who worships a great man comes to partake of the qualities of the object of the worship."

Secfetary Daniels said that he had

Secretary Daniels said that he had recently received in response to let-ters to former students of Lee their estimates of the man which he said gave him better insight into Lee as a teacher and a comrade than all the histories and biographies. "Those old boys," said he, "who wrote me saw a Lee that not even his solders saw." Declaring that the biggest thing in going to college was not what a student gets out of textbooks or from lectures, the secretary, expressed the belief that students in the large col-lexes were not receiving the inspiring comradeship, and leadership of that comradeship and leadership of that chass of teachers who give more of themselves to their classes than they give of the books. Lee's sympathetic nature and evinced interest in each one personally is the ideal for those who aspire to teach youths, the secretary declared.

"I cavy," he said, "the men who had the privilege when boys of sitting at the feet of Lee."

His Failure Not Failure.

Secretary Daniels declared that Lee brought all the world to see that failure was not failure, but that it was in reality the triumph of devotion to duty, "which endures after the tumult and the shouting ends." He spoke of the statesmanship and courage shown by Lee when, seeing that there was no hope for victory, he laid down his sword at Appomattox to devote the rest of his life to teaching the young men of the South. His Fallure Not Failure.

"Sometimes I shoudder," said the secretary, "to think what would have been the fate of the South in its su-preme hour of need of a great man if the leader of the army had not been big enough and brave enough to admit country, North and South, officers returned to their homes with no asset except to hark back to the war, and to redebate the issues and questions it hat stirred the country before Sumter. You know and I know men of parts, who never achieved the place to which their abilities entitled them, because, instead of following the example of Lee, they gave themselves almost wholly up to continual living over the war and debating the contentions that were settled by arbitrament of arms, thereby separating themselves and their activities from the re-establishment of property in their sections.

"Do not misunderstand me. It was the duty of historians to tell the South's story, and to present its rights and duties, and to teach to the youths of the South that their fathers fought for rights guaranteed them by the Constitution. The temper of the people of this setcion before and after the war was well expressed by Professor White, of your faculty, who being asked in a Northern city to tell of the character of this people, replied. They are the folks who spit no fire before the war and have eaten no dirt since.

"Self-respecting, self-contained, true to traditions, honoring memories, making no apologies and not vaunting themselves in the market place. This is the character of the people who fell under the spell of the influence of Robert Edward Lec."

Following the address a reception was tendered faculty, alumni and visitors on the campus. An alumni smoker was also held in the college library immediately after the reception.

the leader of the army had not been big enough and brave enough to admit that victory was impossible.

"Most soldiers in Lee's place would have been tempted to liten to the repeated counsels to send the army into the fastnesses of the mountains and the inaccessible swamps and keep up an interminable warfare rather than to save their men and their country by facing conditions and making the most of them. There were not wanting brave soldiers who favored this course. Suppose such a one had been in command? Who can imagine the horrors and woes of the men and weblarrender was the course of wisdom, with him the war was over. Miss O. M. asks: "I have pimples, oily skin, and suffer from constitution, headache, and never feel strong and well. Please prescribe for me." Answer: You should overcome constipation and cleanse the system of accumulated poisons by taking three-grain supherb tablets (not sulphur) for several weeks or more. These tablets are very beneficial, especially in hot weather, as they have a tendency to cool the blood and improve its quality.

M. J. B. asks: "My hair is too oily and my scalp liches with dandruff, and of late it is combing out too much. What is a good treatment?" "Poorly" writes: "Being past middle age and observing that my nervous system is in bad shape, I write for a prescription. What is a good treatment:

Answer: Obtain plain yellow minyol from your druggist in 4-oz, jars and apply as per directions. This cleans, purifies, cools and invigorates to hair and scalp, thus stopping the cath of the hair. Dandruff and iter g are at once relieved. Men and won an all over the country now use it regularly.

SECRETARY DANIELS
REVIEWS V. M. I. CADETS

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Lexington, Va., June 17.—About 500 visitors were present at the Virginia Military Institute when the battalion of cadets passed in review before Secretary of the Navy Daniels this afternoon. The review was substituted for Butts Manual, the usual Wednesday drill. Immediately perceding the review and while the secretary, accompanied by Dr. Smith, president of Washington and Lee University, was driving up the avenue to the superintendent's quarters, the prescribed salute of nineteen guns was fired by a platoon of artillery. The battalion, under arms and in full dress, was formed at 6 o'clock on the parade grounds. After it had been turned over to Colonel Wise, the secretary, accompanied by General Nichols and Staff Doctor Smith and Colonel Wise and staff, marched around the battalion inspecting the cadets at close quarters. The battalion then passed in review at quick and double time, while Secretary Daniels, with those who accompanied him, stood near the guard tree.

GOVERNOR ADDRESSES GRADUATES AT V. P. I.

Greatest Crowd in History of Institute Present to See Fifty-Three Men Receive Their Degrees.

STUART'S PRACTICAL ADVICE

Tells in What Way He Belleves V. P. I. Is Filling Its Mission by Fitting Men to Take Up Burden of State-List of Honors and Awards.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] largest audience ever assembled at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute on commencement day was present in the chapel this morning to hear the address to the graduating class by Governor Henry C. Stuart, of Virginia, and witness the conferring of degrees upon fifty-three men by President Eggleston; with the awarding of medals, announcement of honors and promotions for next session. The procession to the chapel was composed of the cadet corps, faculty, and alumni. the cadet corps, faculty, and alumni. Specially invited guests on the rostrum with the Governor included Dr. J. M. McBryde, president emeritus of J. M. McBryde, president emeritus of V. P. I.; members of the board of visitors and others. Rev. D. J. Woods made the invocation, and music was furnished by an orchestra under the direction of Professor Gudheim. President Eggleston introduced Mr. Stuart, and the Governor, after expressing his pleasure at being here on this occasion, spoke informally of the need of this day and time for practical education, and told in what ways he believed V. P. I. was filling its mission by fitting men to meet this need. In conclusion, he urged the graduates to leave the college with due recognition of the duty they owe this State, and to of the duty they owe this State, and to fulfill the duties of their citizenship.

After Mr. Stuart's brief and practical address, Dr. W. G. Christian presented the medals won in the literary society contest on Saturday night. President Eggleston announced that President Eggleston announced that company A. W. G. Wysor, of Pulaski, captain, had been awarded the medal in competitive drill, presented the certificates for proficiency in the agricultural collection. tificates for proficiency in the agri-cultural college to the special students, and conferred degrees upon the fifty-three graduates, making them a brief talk on their duty to the college, telland their duty to the college, telling them what education they have acquired here should really mean to them, and ended with the formal announcement that the session was at an nouncement. The exercises concluded with the benediction and singing of "Auld Lang Syne."
